Dear [REDACTED]

I am very pleased that Mr. Colby and officials of the Agency will meet with the group of fifteen faculty members (chosen from leading American university schools of business) who will be working in government during the next several months, from about 2:45 p.m. to 4:15 p.m., Wednesday, June 28th, at Langley. I believe I told [REDACTED] about 2:30, but that may be a bit tight for us coming by bus from Brookings. Rod also tells me that Mr. Colby has suggested a somewhat different format, stressing Agency experts in certain fields.

For your information, and necessary checking, I am enclosing two lists of participants - one shows full names, dates and places of birth, the other is the list of their university affiliations and government assignments after the orientation period is over. It is my understanding that [REDACTED] will be away during the orientation period, so you can eliminate any check on him. I will let you know of any changes from the list - as it stands now, we expect a maximum of 16 persons (the 14 fellows, after dropping [REDACTED] of the AACSB, and myself).

I haven't had a chance to work with you, since I was hospitalized in late January during the only conference for business executives which I was scheduled to run this year ([REDACTED] handled that group). All I have learned about this group of faculty members suggests they should be a lively and interested audience. Thanks for your help.

Sincerely yours,

John A. Larson
